HAIL AND FAREWELL

ON SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, State and County officials will join with citizens of Hancock and Harrison counties in dedication ceremonies celebrating the completion and opening to traffic of the magnificent $9,200,000 steel and concrete bridge spanning the waters of the Bay of St. Louis. This bridge is the fulfillment of a dream long visualized by the farsighted and industrious citizens of this section of the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

March 2, 1920, just a little more than twenty-five years ago—marked the dedication of the present wooden bridge, so often damaged by fires and storms and soon to be dismantled. This 25-year-old "relic" was, at that time, considered the finest in bridge construction—a monument to the engineering genius of that time. And we dare say that many of those who on Saturday will participate in the dedication ceremonies for the new bridge were even more proud of that old wooden bridge at that time than they are of the new concrete span soon to be opened to the traveling public. And, believe it or not, the total cost of the wooden bridge was a mere $800,000.

Of course, it is easy to understand why the public's appreciation was so great then. At that time we were not just replacing an old bridge, but were getting something we had never had—a new, two-mile-long bridge, replacing an ancient ferryboat plying between our shores and Henderson Point. Is it any wonder that our people were so thrilled?

But regardless of our feelings then and now, when we look upon this wonderful achievement of modern engineering genius, we can only wonder how it is possible to build such a giant mass of concrete and steel over two miles of water in such a comparatively short time.

Our congratulations to the Mississippi State Highway Commission for their part in the planning and financing of this marvelous structure, and to the firm of Merritt, Chapman and Scott Company of New York, and others associated with them in the actual construction of the bridge.

A TRIBUTE TO HEROES OF THE KOREAN WAR

THE AMERICAN LEGION is happy to note the Armistice of the Korean War.

We realize that this is not necessarily the end of the conflict. We are hopeful that our representatives at the truce talks will take into account the welfare of our sons and brothers.

MANY broken men will return to this country. They carry with them the scars of war, some physical, some mental. Some are from our shores. They sacrificed their time, health and lives that we would be spared the ordeal of war in our country. War with its destruction and desolation leaves no civilian lives but those far away from our homes.

Yes, we owe much to these little men who proved themselves to be great men who would die for the cause which has made America truly the Land of the Free.

At the end of each year, there is a special effort to raise the return of these heroes. This year we have done well. The return of the heroes' funds is excellent. The cost of sending these heroes is tremendous, but it must be remembered that these broken men need to be helped for the continuation of American and our way of life.

Our liberty, freedom and justice are still again, as ever, the pride and joy of these heroes.

It is the American Legion that know America, its heroes, its men. We are the ones who are most familiar with the needs of the veterans. The American Legion is the one organization that has been closest to the veterans. The American Legion will continue to do its best to help the veterans.

White the topsoil is only a temporary place, this lower layer is the most important. It is the amount of water stored in this layer, and which is available to the crops, that determines how long the crops can grow and not suffer from the lack of moisture during the period of drought.

There are some soils in South Mississippi that are so sandy that they do not have a real subsoil. The sand just goes on down. The soils take up a lot of water but do not hold it very well for use during dry periods. These require special handling for successful crop land.

There are some soils on which crops may suffer from the lack of moisture during dry periods even though they contain a lot of water. These soils usually hold so much water during wet seasons, especially in spring, that row crops are damaged by too much water.

The Soil Conservation Service technical staff has developed methods of conservation to protect and improve the topsoil and subsoil to make better use of the soil.

J. D. Hill and his brother, L. L. Hill, of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, live on a farm in the Pearl River Community. They made some improvements on about half of the land for the crops. However, assistance was required from the Soil Conservation Service technicians. A conservation survey of the farm was made and the nature of the soil was explained to them. After this explanation, the Hills decided their original plans would have to be changed.

J. D. Hill said, "I see that we will have to change our plans and force out this kind of land for crops. We can put the pasture on the water land that we had first set aside for crops."

The only convertible that outsells Ford!

WHAT IS IT that makes Ford's Sunliner America's best seller? Is it its high-compression V-8 power? (No other convertible in Ford's field has this kind of engine.) Is it the fine craftsmanship of its Crestmark Body? (No body in its field can match Ford's choice of exterior and interior color combinations.) Is it its new spring and shock absorber action which makes even roughest roads feel smooth? (The Sunliner's springs are tailored to its weight.) Is it the choice of Fordomatic, Overdrive or Conventional you get? (You won't find such a choice in any other car in Ford's field.)

No, it's not just any one of these things that make Ford America's largest selling convertible. It's all 41 of Ford's "Worth More" features... features which folks like to make Ford worth more when they buy... worth more when they sell it.

own home for many years. John Cooper, the author of "How to Make Money in Real Estate," says that an opportunity exists for the baby deer herd to expand, but not as rapidly as at all, that the market may be slow for purchasing food for the deer.

The world seems to be moving forward with steady steps, but seems to move a bold direction. It is still not clear in the open air, where man's drive for self-government and freedom and that of man's have been tested.

There is no more pitiful spectacle than a helpless bird that has been brought home to be petted and released of its natural freedom. It sits dejectedly on a perch until it is never having the incentive to spread forth with one little chirp. Accustomed to roaming about in free air, it loses all its spirit when taken away from its natural environment.

Everyone by now, has heard of the unpredictable Nickie Hilton (who was briefly married to Elizabeth Taylor of movie fame). Nickie comes to the "Hotel" Hilton who seem to go on and on building Hotel after Hotel. The two newest are the "Castellana" in Madrid and the "Istanbul Hilton" in the Turkish city.

The former opened in genuine Hollywood style earlier this month bringing to Europe, for the first time, the American idea in stream-lined luxury and comfort for which Conrad Hilton is famous.

Invitations to the three day opening which included dinners, dances and "tournaments" (a sort of amateur bull fight) were at a premium and many who were necessarily left out were trying furiously to buy tickets at a fabulous sum.

The twentieth century "castle in Spain" is the epitome of plush luxury and many of the bedrooms have their private terrace overlooking the green patio. These terraces are complete with wrought iron furniture and flowers growing in boxes which line the railings.

Courses of instruction in specialized fields of hotel operation are being given to a number of trainees seeking key positions on the staff of the Istanbul Hilton Hotel.

They are learning in this city how the Hilton chain operates its hotels and what the Istanbul link in the chain will be expected to do. This hotel will be ready for opening next spring.

The training period is expected to last six to nine months. In addition to the supervisor schooling them in their specialized work, each of the trainees has a sponsor who is a top executive of the hotel chain and whose purpose is to familiarize him with the general aspects of hotel operations and with their social, sporting, pleasure, and business needs.

Thousands of skilled hands have been

at the task of giving this through

new machine, under whom

and pressing front to produce the garments

that America's women will wear later this year.

The production job is a race against time, particularly for the makers of medium prices and better merchandise.

Retailers in June placed their initial orders for the garments and they went on early to determine the acceptability

of their selections among the customers.

Many of New York's 4,500 garment manufacturers, therefore, have already begun to ship out apparel that will figure in late July and early August offerings in the country's leading department stores and specialty shops.

But almost any day any time of the year if one strolls down Seventh Avenue one will see "carriers" wheeling great racks of dresses and coats from one point to another. Upon inquiry one learns that these garments are being transferred either from factory or dealer or that they are being taken to some house to display for possible orders.

The section is so thickly settled with manufacturers and dealers that all are within a few blocks of the others and delivery by truck would seem a little ridiculous for so short a distance,

the method of pushing the racks along the sidewalk is a common and typical one.

We learned that, contrary to our own mistaken idea, practically all of the machines are operated by men. We had always thought of men as being tailors but had not associated them

with the stitching up of women's garments.

The fitters, however, are all women.

In the same section of New York

one sees the usual "characters" which go to comprise the population of every large city (and even some small ones).

There is "Moondog" (self-styled) who wears a distinctive outfit which resembles a sort of sash made from a slightly grayed sheet. Another more colorful (though by no means any cleaner) strip of material forms an improvised cape over his shoulders. On his arm swings a woman's purse made of black velvet and graced with ornate gold frame, into which, we suppose, he must deposit his daily receipts. Moondog is (or seems to be) quite young. He wears a beard, how-

In Auto Mishap Sunday Afternoon

Bill Corr, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen T. Corr, 301 Union Ave., escaped serious injury when he lost control of a car he was driving Sunday afternoon about 4:30.

Corr was traveling on Seven Acre Wawanda, in the direction of the railroad when the car swerved from the road onto the shoulder, where loose gravel evidently caused the car to skid, resulting in the accident.

Other special guests of the Bay Lions were Bill and Mel Opronowicz, the new owners of the Bay Coast Echo.

Stan Opronowicz, the paper's editor, told the Lions that they would try to publish a good newspaper.

The Echo's popularity in the community, he said, would draw to Bay St. Louis and Hancock County on the road forward.

The Echo's associates editor and business manager, echoed the thoughts

that his brother had voiced, and said that the two groups of the Echo

wanted to become acquainted with every one in the community.

The Lions, in club activities, voted to participate in the opening of the new bridge by helping to hand motor

10,000 new road signs and wind

shield stickers, commemorating the $9-million Bay bridge. Recent contestants in the local Miss Hospitality contest also will be asked to help out.

In a club resolution, the Lions voted to help promote several community

and county projects such as the Bay

St. Louis water and sewerage program

the completion of the county airport

and the building of a municipal stadium

for football and other sporting events.

Lion Carver reported on the possibility of the peanut machine being

in operation soon, with local Boy Scouts

assisting.

Next Lions Club meeting will be at Hotel Reed on August 10.

Work on the new bridge is progressing rapidly.
